Green Investment Fund axing: Fleet leasing companies primed for meeting climate goals, without taxpayers footing the bill

Following the announcement that the Government is winding down its Green Investment Fund, New Zealand's specialist lenders and fleet leasing companies say they are well positioned to assist customers to achieve their climate goals, without requiring investment of taxpayer funds to achieve this.

This reassurance comes after the Prime Minister/Minister of Finance announced it was winding down the scheme, which aimed to "accelerate low-emissions investments".

The majority of commercial fleet leasing providers operating in New Zealand are members of the Financial Services Federation (FSF) industry body, including Spiers Group, Scania, Fleet Partners, SG Fleet, UDC, and Mercedes-Benz. The FSF also represents specialist lenders, credit unions and building societies.

FSF Executive Director Lyn McMorran says members have been actively responding to market demands to meet customers' climate goals since well before the Fund came into play in 2019, and will continue to do so.

"Our specialist lending and fleet leasing members are well positioned to assist New Zealand business and consumers achieve their climate goals, it simply does not make economic sense for taxpayer funds to be invested where the private specialist lending sector has already got this," McMorran says.
